France -Circuit Paul Ricard, Le Castellet

March 16 th

Circuit Paul Ricard opened in 1970 as a very modern, well-engineered circuit, with multiple layouts and its own airstrip, which made it a favourite winter test venue.

The circuit hosted the French Grand Prix 14 times between 1971 and 1990. After F1 moved to Magny-Cours, Paul Ricard spent the 1990s mainly hosting motorcycle and national events. In 1999 it was rebuilt as a high-tech test facility (HTTT), featuring its distinctive abrasive run-off zones.

Today, it still has an airstrip and multiple specialist test layouts, and it is regarded as one of the more sustainability-focused circuits in motorsport.

Italy -Mugello Circuit

April, 27th

The Mugello Circuit (Autodromo Internazionale del Mugello) is a renowned race track situated in Scarperiae San Piero, Tuscany, Italy. Nestled among the enchanting Tuscan hills, this 5.25 km (3.26-mile) circuit offers a striking visual experience.

Designed to challenge drivers, the circuit features 14 diverse turns, including the famous Arrabbiata, which demand both skill and precision. The long straight section, measuring 1.14 km, allows competitors to achieve high top-end speeds, making Mugello an exhilarating venue for both drivers and spectators.

The region surrounding Mugello is also rich in history and culture, with numerous charming towns and historic sites nearby, adding to the overall appeal of visiting this exceptional circuit.

Austria –Red Bull Ring

May 18 th

The Red Bull Ring is a motorsport circuit located in Spielberg, Austria.

The track was originally founded as Österreichringand hosted the Austrian Grand Prix for 18 consecutive years from 1970 to 1987. It was later shortened, rebuilt and renamed the A1-Ring (A Eins-Ring), hosting the Austrian Grand Prix again from 1997 to 2003.

When Formula One outgrew the circuit, plans were drawn up to extend the layout.

Parts of the circuit, including the pits and main grandstand, were demolished, but construction work was halted, leaving the circuit unusable for several years. It was eventually purchased by Red Bull's Dietrich Mateschitz and comprehensively rebuilt.

Now known as the Red Bull Ring, the track reopened in 2011 with a 4.318 km layout.

Portimao-Algarve International Circuit

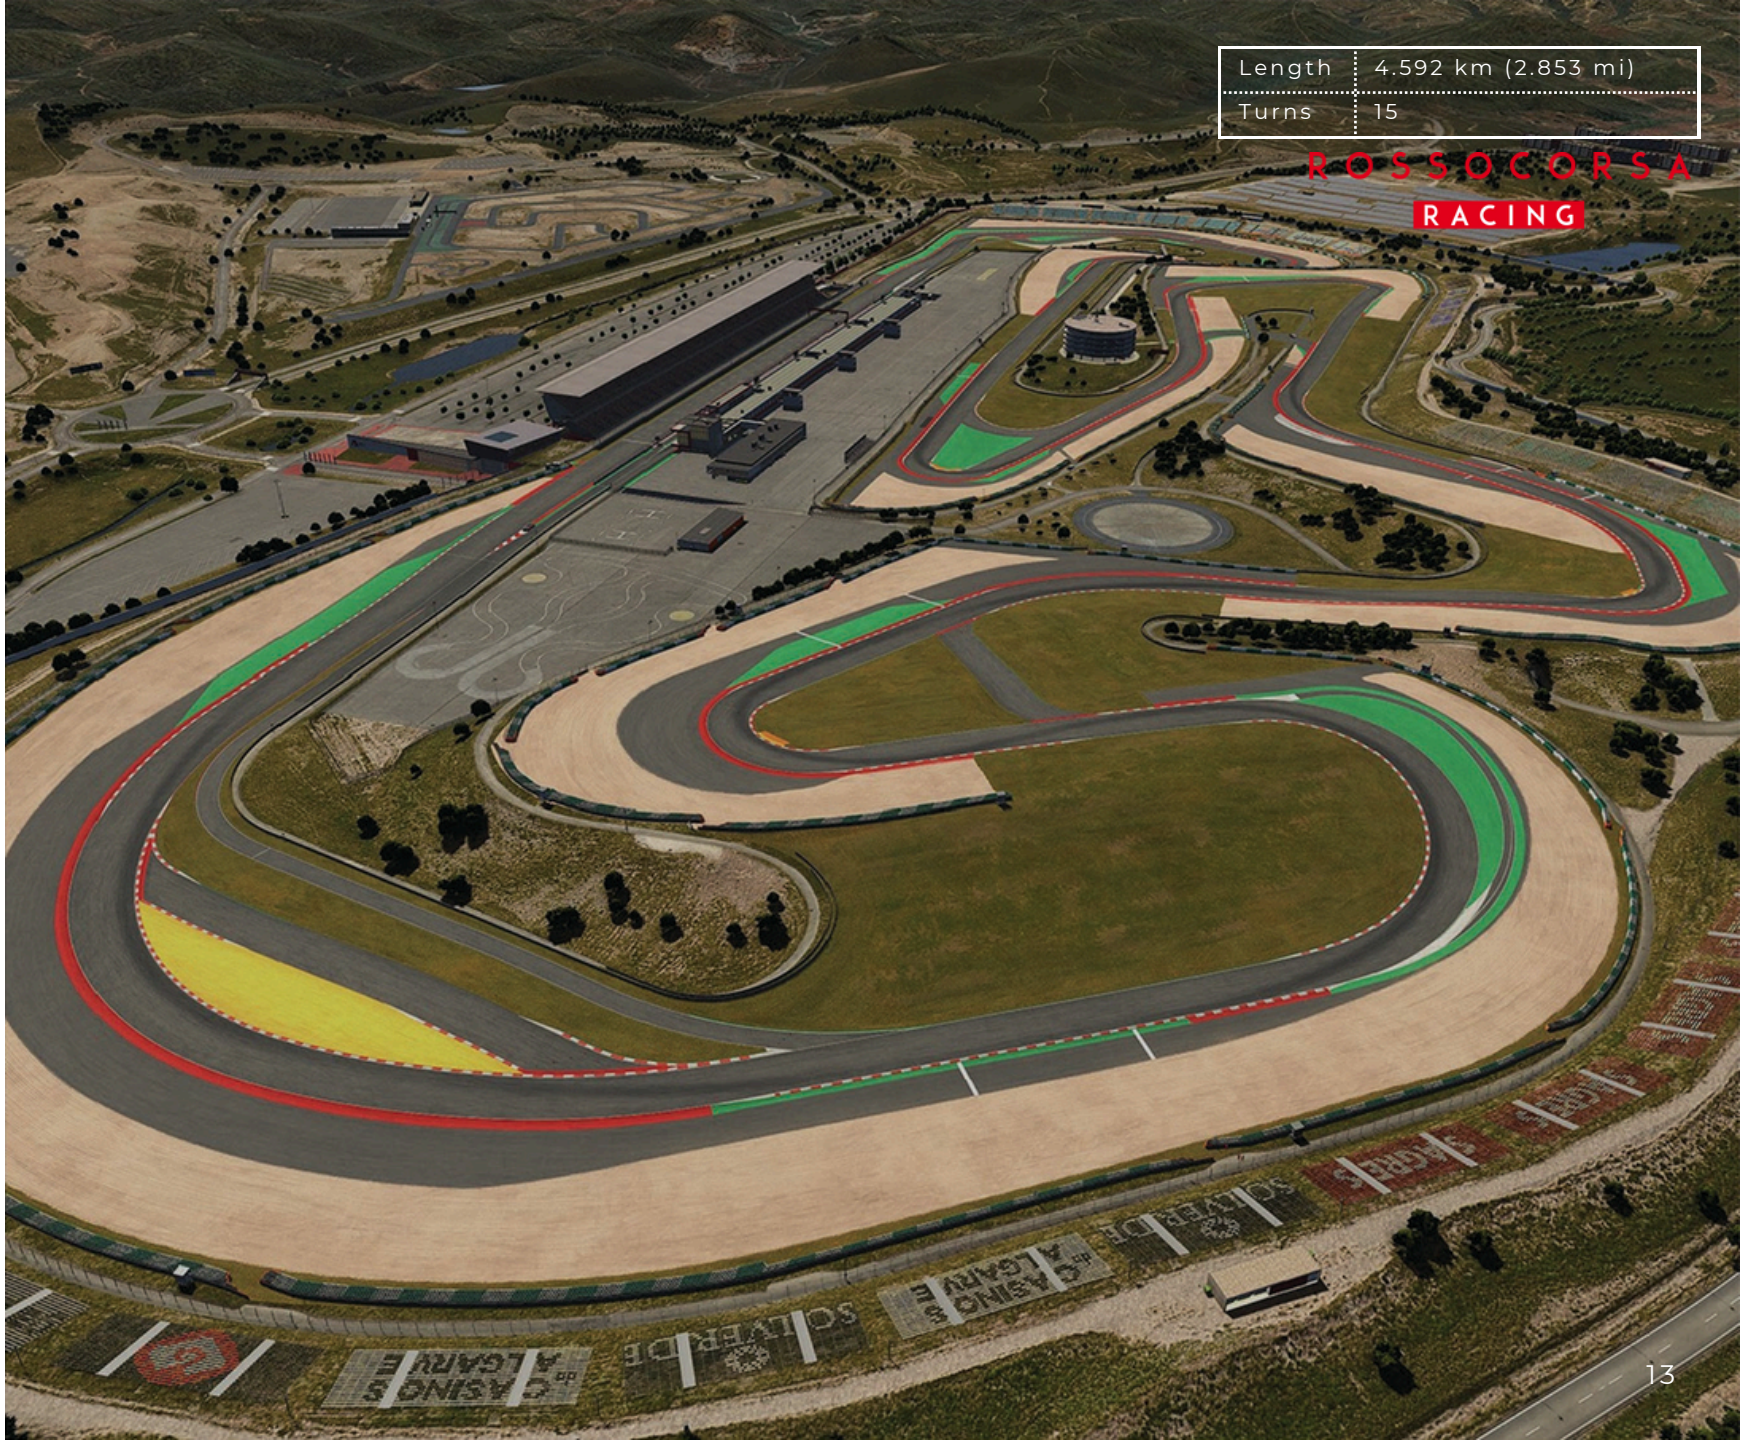

July 20th

The Algarve International Circuit is a 4.653 km racing track in Portimão, Portugal, opened in 2008. The wider complex also includes a kart track, off-road area, hotel, tech park and sports facilities.

Since opening, it has hosted many major series —from F1 and WEC, to MotoGP and Superbike.

The track is known for its significant elevation changes and its "old-school" character, reminiscent of the Nürburgring and Spa. Drivers describe it as a "roller coaster": blind crests, steep drops, cambered corners, fast right-handers after the main straight, and wide lines that allow overtaking.

As of 2022 it continues to host MotoGP, WorldSBK, ELMS and other major events, and it returned to the WEC calendar in 2023.

Italy -Autodromo Internazionale Enzo e Dino Ferrari

October 24th-25th

Imola, officially the Autodromo Internazionale Enzo e Dino Ferrari, is a 4.909 km circuit in Imola, Italy, east of Bologna. Opened in 1953, it was originally used for motorcycle racing.

Imola hosted non-championship F1 races during the 1960s and 1970s, before officially joining the World Championship in 1980. From 1981 to 2006 it was the home of the San Marino Grand Prix. Safety concerns became a major focus, especially at the high-speed Tamburello corner, after which chicanes and layout changes were introduced to slow the track.

The circuit was rebuilt and modernised in 2007, and since then has hosted major series beyond F1, including WorldSBK, WTCC, ELMS and top-level UCI cycling events.

Spain -Circuit de Barcelona-Catalunya

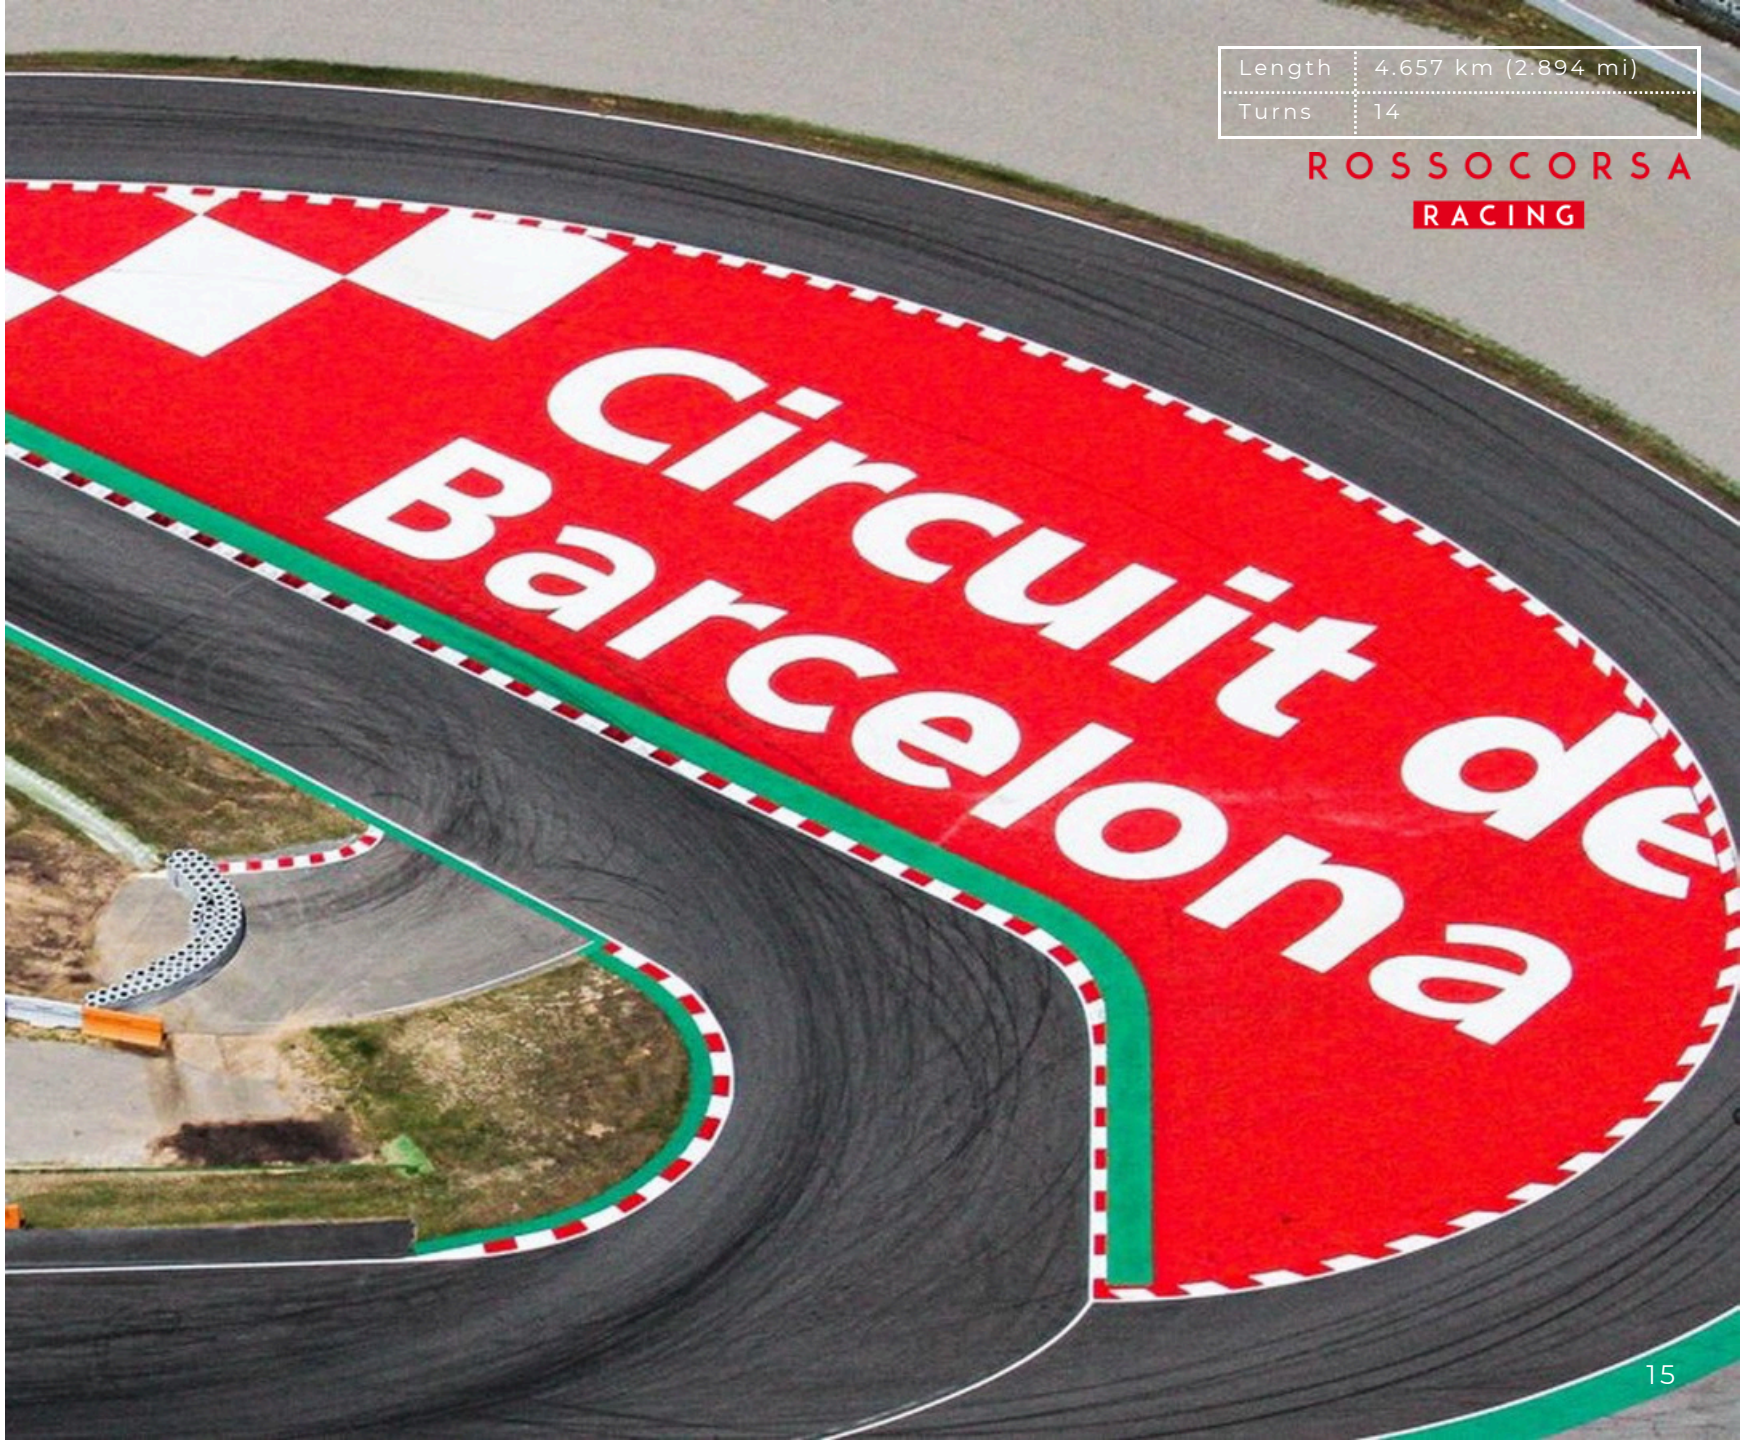

November 17 th

The Circuit de Barcelona-Catalunya, located just outside the vibrant city of Barcelona, offers a thrilling experience for motorsport enthusiasts.

Since its inauguration in 1991, this world-renowned 4.657 km (2.894 miles) track has become synonymous with speed, precision, and excitement.

Hosting the Spanish F1 Grand Prix and Catalan MotoGP Grand Prix every year without fail, it has welcomed many of the greatest champions in motor racing.

Known for its compelling mix of long straights and demanding corners, this track provides an unforgettable driving experience.
